FIRED BULLET INTO HIS BRAIN

Despondent Manilla Merchant
Attempts Suicide at an Early Hour Today

SAYS HE WANTS TO DIE

Physicians Claim the Man has no Chance for Recovery
—Community is Shocked

The town of Manilla was shocked this morning when the news spread that one of their most estimable citizens had sought to end his life by shooting himself with a pistol shortly after arising.

It was about 6:30 o'clock that O. M. Taylor arose as usual at his home which is in connection with a general store that he has conducted for years, and after dressing went down stairs and there at the bottom of the stairs fired a bullet from a 32 calibre revolver into his head, the ball penetrating between the eyes, ranging upwards through the upper portion of the brain and coming out at the back of his head.

Shortly after he had left the room his wife awoke and was just in the act of rising in her bed to look around the room when she heard a pistol shot ring out. Hurriedly she looked under the pillow where they usually kept a pistol and finding it missing, realized in an instant what had occurred. With a scream she ran from the room and hastened down the stairs to find her husband lying in a pool of blood. She summoned help and had the dying man carried to a couch.

When asked why he had committed such a deed, the only response he would give was: "I aimed a little bit too high." He has been despondent for some time, but no definite cause is assigned for his rash act. Several times today he has expressed himself, saying that he does not want to live. Little hope is entertained for his recovery and late this afternoon he was reported in a dying condition. The attending physicians say he cannot live.

Mr. Taylor is fifty-six years of age and has been in business in Manilla for over twenty-five years; he was prominent in Democratic politics and is an ex-trustee of Walker township. Drs. Barnum and Barnum and Waltemire are attending the dying man.

Mr. Taylor was born in Memphis, Clark county, Indiana, January 10, 1852. For thirteen years he followed the profession of teaching, after which he worked as a railroad telegrapher until he engaged in his present line of business. He was united in marriage to Miss Laura E. Mather, of Campbellburg, in May, 1876. He has several children living, one of them Glen Taylor, being an employee of the Whitehead restaurant in this city.

Tevis, of this city, has been engaged to sing the leading role in "The National Flower" which will be produced at the English theatre under the direction of Tarkington Baker, dramatic editor of the Indianapolis News, on May 1st and 2d.

The opera is given for the benefit of the unemployed of Indianapolis under the auspices of the Charity Organization Society.

SAY THE REPUBLICAN IS CREDIT TO THIS CITY

Columbus Republican Speaks in Highest Terms of "Our Newspaper"

Of the Daily Republican's fourth anniversary, the Columbus Republican says: "The Rushville Daily Republican has discarded its swaddling clothes and now struts about in knee pants and copper-toed boots. In other words, that paper is four years old, and lays aside its infant garments for those of strenuous boyhood. If the Rushville paper had not reminded its readers of its youth, few would think it less than half a century old—so vigorous is it in appearance and in fact. The Republican, despite its youth, is a credit to Rushville and deserves the liberal patronage accorded."

SHEPARD FACES SERIOUS CHARGE

Manilla Man Before Judge
Sparks in the Shelby Circuit Court

TRIED BEFORE A JURY

Six-Year-Old Child will Tell
Story of Incident Which Occurred at County Fair

William Shepard, of Manilla, charged with assault and battery and other serious offenses on little Anna Pearl Ingermiller, was on trial yesterday in the Shelby circuit court before Judge Sparks and a jury. The child in the case is but six years old and is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Ingermiller, of Pountaintown, who ran a stand at the fair last fall. On Friday of the fair Shepard had the little girl out for an automobile ride and with him at various places about the fair ground.

Friday evening the little girl sobbed out a story to her mother that led the parents to think Shepard had been guilty of mistreating the child in a heinous manner and his arrest followed the next day on the charge he is now called upon to answer to.

He denies the story as told by the child and has sought in many ways to escape trial in the case. The latest move made was a motion to quash the intent feature of the charge but Judge Sparks overruled the motion. Mr. Shepard's defense is being managed by Attorney Alonzo Blair. George Melks is assisting Prosecutor Hack in the case.

THE CLIMAX OF SOCIAL EVENTS

Was the Brilliant Affair at the Rushville Social Club
Last Night

ST. PATRICK'S DAY DANCE

Large Number of Out-of-Town
Guests in Attendance—Thursday Evening Club Entertains

Hundreds of many sized shamrocks were waving in the air, fanned by the mobility of a hundred couples waltzing about the ball room, while the good old Irish air of "Wearin' o' the Green" was played by a full orchestra at the Social club last night, where one of the smartest social affairs ever held in the city attracted one of the most brilliant crowds ever gathered together here. It was the occasion of the St. Patrick's dance and a more delightful event could not be imagined. Couples and individuals representing every age in the social world were present and thoroughly enjoyed the dance and dinner.

The ball room was Irish from "tip to tip," a thousand shamrocks being used in every conceivable form of decoration, while panel effects of American flags with Irish shields and harps added a deal to the pretty scheme. Many shamrocks were suspended from the ceiling by threads and floated through the air as the gay and happy dancers tripped over the glossy surface. A program of popular and old Irish airs were played by the Lew C. Smith orchestra of Indianapolis. Programs designed in keeping with the decoration scheme and printed in green were given out by the bearers, the Misses Helen Scudder and Frances Frazee. The grand march, which occurred at nine o'clock was one of the prettiest sights ever witnessed at the club. It was led by the newly elected president, Mr. Robert L. Tompkins and his wife. Rushville's one valuable asset, her large number of beautiful young ladies and matrons, added much to the picture of festivity. Dinner was served in the club rooms and was in keeping with the occasion, as far as dishes and service go.

A great amount of tedious work was involved in decorating the club and for John Freeman and his able corps of assistants, Will M. Bliss, T. W. Betker and Gay Abercrombie, no end of complimentary words of admiration were expressed.

Among the out-of-town were Miss Mae Bliss and Mr. I. D. DeHaven, of Indianapolis; Dr. and Mrs. F. R. Hinshaw, of Middletown; Dr. White of Shelbyville; Miss Ewing, of Greensburg; Mr. and Mrs. Donald McIntosh, and Messrs. Leo Kahn and Edward Doll, of Connorsville; John Ratliff of Spiceland; Miss Alma Wiant, of Parkersburg, West Va.; Mr. Coll Robertson, of Indianapolis; Clyde Randall, of Greencastle, and a number of the Rushville college students who are here on their spring vacation.

One of the brightest events of the season in the Thursday Evening club was the St. Patrick's dance given by the ladies of the club last evening at the Modern Woodmen hall. After the dance the ladies entertained their husbands and gentlemen friends at an elegant dinner at Whitehead's cafe. The Harrison orchestra gave one of the best musical programs ever given in this city by any orchestra, playing an artistic appropriate program.

An enjoyable evening was spent by all. Harvey Marsh and John Campman, of Indianapolis, were the out-of-town guests.

It is stated that there are 100,000 unemployed in New York, but the figures probably include a good many who wouldn't work if they had the chance.

THE WEATHER

Rain or snow in north; rain in south portion tonight and Thursday; colder.

ASKED FOR A NEW COUNTY BUILDING

Rush County Commissioners
Want an Appropriation of $13,000 from the Council

The county council met in regular session at the courthouse today and the first thing that confronted them was a request from the county commissioners asking for an appropriation for $13,000 to erect a new building at the county poor farm. This the council disallowed.

The council took into consideration a number of appropriations, including $925 for the William Hall bridge; $800 for the Benton Henley bridge, and $920 for the Smith bridge.

Allowance was made for the Winkler smallpox quarantine and adjourned until tomorrow, when these appropriations will be given a second reading.

INJURED BY RUNNING RUSTY NAIL IN FOOT

A. M. Webb received a painful injury this morning by stepping on a rusty wire nail at Ed. Lee's barn. The nail penetrated the shoe and ran into his foot about an inch. Mr. Webb is suffering quite a little pain from the injury, which may prove serious.

BURGLARS PROVED TO BE A BAD MEMORY

A report was current the past day that the home of Dr. P. H. Chadwick in North Morgan street was entered by burglars early Tuesday morning and a large sum of money taken. Dr. Chadwick says that the report is false as the money was mislaid and has been found.

Tinted Canaries.

BLOOMS WILL BE MUCH IN DEMAND FOR EASTER

Greenhouse Men are Making Arrangements for a Big Rush in Business

The demand for plants in bloom along about Easter is expected by the greenhouse men to be heavy. Cut flowers will also be in demand but as a rule persons desire growing plants, to cut flowers at this season. Many of the desirable Easter blooming plants are being forced at the greenhouses so as to be ready for sale. Azeleas, bush plants covered with flowers of almost any color always attract the most attention, but as they are rather expensive not many sales are expected. Primroses and cyclamen, bulbous plants, blooming monthly roses and a few other plants will be most in demand.

CIGARMAKER GETS $10,000

Morton Conner Receives that Amount for Patent Rights of Non-Refillable Bottle

BOSTON FIRM THE BUYER

Rushville Man is Happy and is Knee Deep in Other Ideas at a Local Foundry

There is one man in Rushville today who is happier than the rest for yesterday the good fairy came to him with a story that set his brain reeling, suddenly thrusting a small fortune in his lap.

For many long days and nights, Morton Conner, living in North Harrison street, struggled with a problem that has drove many brainy men insane, that of trying to successfully make a bottle which could not be refilled once it was emptied of its contents. At last fortune smiled on Conner and much to the surprise of his immediate friends whom he let in on his secret, one day he exhibited to them an arrangement which was a complete success in every way. Many large firms throughout the country at once tried to get possession of the patent, and as any one who ever had ought to do with patents will readily know, the problem of disposing of the article, without being victimized by ghouls who play the profession, was equally as difficult a matter to the novice as the making of it, in the beginning.

But yesterday his troubles and cares along this line came to an end when the rights were purchased by a Boston, Mass., firm, Conner receiving in the neighborhood of $10,000 for his patent.

For several years Conner has been employed as a cigarmaker here, but it is likely that he has rolled his last cigar, and in the future will tear the bands off perfectos instead of making them. He is now in a position to carry out a number of ideas for several other patents which he has in mind, and today was engaged in that work at the Madden & Co. foundry.

The non-refillable arrangement is pronounced by manufacturers as being the most practical ever offered for sale. It will be used as a novelty by a large company which puts out a great deal of bottled goods.

PARTY OF TOURISTS LEAVE FOR THE SOUTH

O. B. Oster, tourist and electrician, was the leader of a party of Rushville young men who left today for Norfolk, Virginia, where they will be engaged on a large electrical job. The party includes Harry Mainey, John Brown and Elmer Litteral.

WANT TO BUILD A FACTORY HERE

But Were Discouraged when Enormous Price is Asked for Ground

CAUSES MUCH DISCUSSION

Which Will Probably Lead to the City Council Extending the Boundary Lines

Several prominent local business men associated with out-of-town capitalists are interested in a project, which, if carried into execution, will mean the establishing of a new factory in Rushville, which will employ at least thirty men.

If suitable ground can be secured a large drain tile factory will be built. It will in nowise interfere with the business of the Dawson tile factory here which depends almost wholly upon a wagon trade, for the new factory will ship all of their output. It is estimated that at least one hundred thousand dollars worth of tile is shipped annually through this city into a market which the new factory could easily corral and supply.

The new company does not ask a bonus, but they do want, and reasonably so, fair play in the deal for the ground. The several places under consideration, where they have asked for an option, the owners have seen fit to soar their price sky high and put the desired location out of reach.

In each instance it is ground which adjoins the city limits, and when ever priced, war prices are quoted.

The matter has reached the ear of the city council and has caused no end of discussion among that body and likewise among a number of the leading tax payers. They argue that if the ground is considered so valuable by the owners that it should appear in a prominent column on the tax duplicate returns and should be taxed accordingly. It has given rise to many speculations, one that is more generally commented upon being, that inasmuch as the property is considered so valuable, and the owners are enjoying the rapid rise of all adjacent property, which is inside the city limits, it follows that proper move on the part of the city council would be to extend the city boundaries at these points and take in all such properties, making them pay an equitable tax. This is considered fair in view of the privileges of the fast increasing value which they enjoy. The matter will probably be put before the city council at an early session.

Folk, the Foe of Boodlers

Achievements of Missouri's Courageous Governor, Who Started a National Anti-Graft Crusade and Is a Presidential Possibility—Clean Cut, Resolute and Always in Earnest.

By JAMES A. EDGERTON.

He who violates the law is not a Democrat; he is not a Republican; he is a criminal," said Joseph W. Folk in the beginning of his career. Missouri has adopted both Folk and his motto. The time is certain to come—and the sooner the better—when the entire nation will also adopt the motto. Will it, too, adopt the man?

Up till the time it became plain that Bryan was in the field for a third nomination Folk was one of the most promising Democratic candidates. Since then he has not permitted his friends to talk of him. Nevertheless Joseph W. Folk is still a presidential possibility. No man who has done the work he has done and who has won the universal esteem that he has won is safe from political lightning.

Folk's fight on the grafters and his appeal to the conscience of the nation have won him a place in American history that will endure. To stand for moral advancement, to uphold private and public honesty, to break up a nest of crooks calling itself a political machine, to send rich and powerful criminals to jail and to start an anti-graft crusade that has spread throughout the country—to do these things is more than merely to be elected president.

These are not the only achievements of Governor Folk. He has killed the lobby in his state, has had the courage to enforce the Sunday closing and when only a trifle past thirty-one. Then, to the amazement and chagrin of the bosses, he actually kept his word and did his duty. He proved that at least one candidate for office meant what he said. The machine politicians of St. Louis have not yet recovered from the novelty of the experience. Some of them have retired to the quiet and seclusion of a jail to think it over.

The average machine worker would be better for the same sort of enforced aid of reflection. It would improve him in many ways, among others in respect for his own word and for other people's property.

Battle Too Real For Badinage.

Folk gave the word "graft" a new significance. He made it apparent that a millionaire criminal can be sent to jail if the prosecutor is sufficiently in earnest. The one thing needed by the American people is to cease regarding a crook as a joke, and the bigger the crook the bigger the joke. There is too much truth in Tom Lawson's indictment of the people that they only stand and grin at the efforts to save them from their enemies. A crook is never a joke; he is a menace. The battle against dishonesty is too real for badinage. The sense of humor is a good and wholesome thing so long as it does not descend to the frivolous and the flippant. There are times when laughter is out of place, when a grin reveals either a knave or a fool. It is found all sorts of obstacles thrown in his way. Many of those he was prosecuting were members of the machine that had nominated and elected him, and he was naturally accused of ingratitude. He had against him some of the most skillful lawyers in the city, with adverse judges on the bench. Technicalities, motions for delay and all the other subterfuges known to the corporation attorney were introduced to block him. His life was even threatened. It required courage, study and constant alertness to meet all this opposition. It was "the test of fire that proved the stuff in the Folk makeup. Here was a country attorney, little more than a boy in years, fighting millions of money and the all powerful political machine of his own party. Until recently unknown, he was suddenly thrust into one of the most conspicuous and trying positions in the country. It goes without saying that he could have got almost any sized bribe for himself by dropping the prosecution. But he was to be moved neither by fear nor cupidity. The coarse workers of machine politics found that there was more in this quiet young man than was apparent on the surface. He was a new type, one that could be neither bullied nor bribed, one not to be discouraged by opposition or tempted by office.

One of Governor Folk's most marked characteristics is that he is deeply religious. He is ever ready with a quotation from the four gospels, and his appeal is to the higher and better in the hearts of his hearers. He is clean in his life without uncharitableness for others. He is moved by inward religious impulse without priggishness.

So equipped with inner light and outer knowledge, young Folk was more than a match for all the talent that the corruptionists could hire. As he won in his case against the boodlers, so he won in his candidacy for governor. The corrupt machines of St. Louis and Kansas City counted the ballots against him, but the sterling Missouri farmers rallied to his support, overturned the bosses and triumphantly gave him the nomination. It was no brass band victory, but one of shut lips and determined hearts. In the succeeding election Folk was the only successful candidate on his ticket. Owing to the fearful exposures Missouri went Republican for the first time in her history. She could not stand the Ryan-Belmont reactionary Democracy that was temporarily in the saddle and gave her electoral vote to Theodore Roosevelt. But at the same time she awarded a signal moral and political victory to J. W. Folk.

Not Yet Forty.

While not classed as an orator, Governor Folk has great power with a jury or an audience because of his sincerity, his ability in finding the weak point of his adversary and of going to the heart of a question and his winning appeal to the hearts and souls of his listeners. He is clean cut, courageous and always in earnest. Whether he is ever president or not he is a distinct force for civic righteousness in this day that needs it so much. Governor Folk is not yet forty years old. He is to be reckoned with in the future. He is quite as fearless in telling of trust graft as in exposing political graft. Through the coming battle of this people against the combinations of crooks Folk will be in his element.

In this day of busy divorce courts and "affinity" dementia it is refreshing to find so many of our public men with clean and wholesome home lives. That of Governor Folk is especially commendable. He and Mrs. Folk, who was a Miss Gertrude Glass, were childhood playmates. She is quite as modest and retiring as he, but takes a keen interest in political affairs and counsels with him on every important move.

Quick Witted.

Despite the fact that he is a very earnest individual, Governor Folk has a quick wit and a keen appreciation of humor. He tells a good story and enjoys one at his own expense. Here is one he used to tell that still may be new to most readers:

A colored man was haled into court for some trivial offense. When his case was reached the clerk frightened the prisoner almost into spasms by reading in a loud voice, "The state of Missouri against John Jones."

"Guilty or not guilty?" said the judge.

Poor John Jones arose, with trembling limbs and bulging eyes.

"Well, yo' honah," he gasped, "ef de whole state o' Missorah is agin dis one pore niggah I's gwine to give up right now."

Folk is almost as much of a Chautauqua favorite as his friend Bryan, as the following story shows:

A bootblack of an Illinois Chautauqua assembly was asked:

"Who was the greatest lecturer on the programme this year?"

"Governor Folk," was the reply.

"Why do you think Governor Folk the greatest lecturer?"

"Why, sir, I made $6.25 the day he was here."

That the Folk features are fairly well known was rather startlingly illustrated some years ago. A letter postmarked at Randolph, N. Y., reached the governor at Jefferson City on schedule time, although the only address was a pen sketch of his face and the single word "Missouri." Mr. Folk said it was not an exact likeness, but it was enough like him to find him without delay.

The brightest hope of this country is found in the clean minded, brave hearted young men of the Roosevelt, Bryan, La Follette and Folk types. They may not all be president, but they can all do valiant battle for common honesty, common decency and the people's rights. Strength to their arms!

We felt we would give everything we had to receive a cure but everything seemed to fail. At last we read of Doan's Kidney Pills and my husband went to F. B. Robbers Came With a Wagon.

Newcastle, Ind., March 18.—The police of this city are trying to ascertain the identity of a woman and one, or possibly two, men who backed a wagon up to the rear of the Gem garment store during a temporary closing and carted away $400 worth of goods. Only the most expensive goods were taken—articles which could not be easily identified. The footprints of a woman in the rear of the store lead to the belief that she helped to select the most valuable articles.

GOVERNOR AND MRS. JOSEPH W. FOLK.

other antisaloon laws and has gone far toward placing principle above policy in the political creed of Missouri. It is impossible to measure the effect of such a life. It is perhaps more powerful in its invisible results than in its visible ones. It is a leaven that leavens the whole body politic. It is an example that, unconsciously to themselves, shapes the thoughts and lives of all who behold it.

That this is literally true in the case of Folk is shown by the fact that, following his exposure of corruption in St. Louis, similar crusades started in Minneapolis, San Francisco and other cities. The movement has only begun. It will go on till it has cleansed every city on the continent. The moral awakening of this people comes slowly, but it is coming as surely and irresistibly as the summer and sunshine.

Private greed cannot always win as against public good. Lies cannot always prevail against righteousness. Selfishness must some time give way to brotherhood. Graft, running the gamut all the way from high finance to low politics, has about had its day in this country. The issue is one of plain honesty. Sooner or later stealing is going to become unpopular. America is discovering a national conscience. Men of the Folk stamp are giving it voice.

Did His Duty.

Joseph Wingate Folk was born in Tennessee in 1869, graduated from Vanderbilt university, admitted to the bar at the age of twenty-one and began practice at his home town of Brownsville. Shortly afterward he went to the big town of his section, St. Louis, where he began as an unknown country lawyer. For seven years he remained unknown, but was gradually winning his way into a good practice. Having been identified with some cases for the union labor people, the Democratic machine, needing a labor candidate, offered him the nomination for circuit attorney. At first Folk refused, but afterward consented to make the race, stipulating, however, that he proposed to "do his duty." The bosses of course regarded this as a good joke. All their candidates said the same, but when in office did the will of the machine.

Despite great odds against him, Folk was elected and took his oath of office time that this people got in earnest about the stock gamblers, manipulators, political bosses and official bribe takers who are stealing elections and robbing industry.

Somebody ought to write a platform consisting of four words, "Down with the crooks!"

That may not be a very elegant shibboleth, but it fits the needs of the case. The battle against organized rascality is not apt to be a pink tea affair. It will require something more than dilettante methods to scourge the thieves from the temple of liberty.

How He Fought Boodlers.

Folk won out because he was in deadly earnest. He bluffed trust presidents and bank presidents into giving him the evidence he needed. Reading that there was $75,000 in a certain depository that members of the St. Louis house of delegates were trying to get, he placed two and two together and concluded that a certain suburban railway was trying to buy the passage of a bill. Calling before him the millionaire president and legislative agent, familiarly known as the keeper of the "yellow dog," Folk asked them as to the facts. When they made denial, he convinced them that he knew the inside of the affair and gave them three days to furnish the information demanded. If they refused, he would have them arrested and would prosecute them to the full extent of the law.

At the end of two days an ex-governor of Missouri appeared for the railroad president with the story that his client was sick. Folk was sorry, of course, but unbending. The upshot was that the magnate and his "yellow dog" both went before the grand jury and confessed. Then, by a magnificent system of bluff and threats of arrest for two bank presidents, Folk, with three members of the grand jury, saw the $75,000 corruption fund which had been deposited for safe keeping and also $60,000 intended to purchase the other house. This was the beginning of the famous boodle prosecution of St. Louis that landed several prominent politicians and business men in the penitentiary, sent others into exile, made the supreme court intervene in behalf of more and placed Joseph W. Folk in the governor's chair.

When the young circuit attorney began his fight against the boodlers he

Two Men In Jail at Vincennes Tell Stories of Houseboat Crime Which Correspond In Detail.

De Moss, However, Says Draves Did
the Killing, While Draves
Accuses De Moss.

Vincennes, Ind., March 13.—Accused of the murder of Mike Risch, an Italian foreman of a construction gang, James DeMoss, a riverman, was arrested at Danville, Ill., and was brought here and placed in the county jail. The arrest was made by Patrolman Hughes of the local police department. He also brought with him Mrs. DeMoss and her five-weeks-old baby, and Mrs. August Draves, wife of a butcher, who is also under arrest as having been connected with the crime. The women refuse to talk, but DeMoss accuses Draves of the murder.

DeMoss says that, following a drunken quarrel on his houseboat, Risch and Draves went ashore. He followed and saw Draves cut Risch's throat with a knife and rob the dying man of $50. Draves, when arrested, accused DeMoss of the murder. Except that each blames the other for the killing, their stories tally.

The murder was committed a month ago, and the disappearance of DeMoss and the women could not be accounted for until a few days ago, when it was learned they had escaped in a rowboat and had boarded a train at Allendale, Ill. They bought tickets for Paris, Ill., but remained on the train until Danville was reached. A letter from Mrs. Draves, written to a friend in this city, asking for the whereabouts of her husband, was the clue that led to the arrest. Charles B. Shaffer, a Pittsburg millionaire, who employed the murdered man, offered a reward of $500 for the arrest of DeMoss.

THEY REFUSE TO JOIN
Coal Operators Will Not Enter Conference With Miners.

Indianapolis, March 13.—The western Pennsylvania and Ohio coal operators, still sore over the defeat of their planned market-stimulating and labor-regulating strike two years ago, and determined to "get even" with John Mitchell, who, with F. L. Robbins, broke its backbone, have officially turned down the miners' invitation for a joint interstate wage conference March 24.

The answers received from the meeting of the Eastern Ohio Operators' association at Cleveland, the Hocking Valley operators at Columbus and the western Pennsylvania operators at Pittsburg read very much as if they had been formulated together and had been well thought out ahead of time. One seems to supplement the other with the foundation for all laid on the Illinois operators' independent decision not to enter a conference until local differences in that state had been adjusted. The real motive behind all of these replies from the Pennsylvania and Ohio operators, it is said, is the determination to give John Mitchell a black eye, if possible, before his people and the public. With this object in sight they have, since last October, maneuvered for a suspension of mining April 1 and have, it is charged, by delays and postponements and by hiding behind the Illinois operators, who have a real grievance, put off month by month all peace movements. If a strike comes on April 1 it is proposed, it is asserted, to make the public and the mining population believe that Mitchell is responsible for it.

Deadly Powder Explosion.
Coalmont, Ind., March 13.—Four men were instantly killed and several were seriously injured when the press mill of the United States Powder company blew up. The dead and injured were employees of the powder company. The explosion is believed to have been caused by the friction of the machinery. The dead are Charles Morris, Charles Gorby, William Simmons and an unidentified man. George Gorby and Charles Stewart are so badly injured they may not recover. Nearly every window in Coalmont was broken.

TOOK NO CHANCES

Tommy Burns Nailed Down Championship on First Blow.

Dublin, March 13.—Tommy Burns, the American heavy-weight champion, made short work of Jem Roche, the Irish champion, in their contest last evening at the Theater Royal for the world's heavyweight championship. Practically only one blow was struck, Burns knocking Roche out when hardly more than a minute of the first round had been completed, by a short hook to the jaw. So quickly did the end come that the great crowd which filled the theater in the expectation of seeing the Irishman put up a good fight for the title, hardly realized what had happened.

When the men entered the ring it was evident that the sluggish Roche was no match for the more experienced Burns. They sparred for less than a minute, the Irishman acting altogether on the defensive and the American endeavoring to find an opening. Then Burns feinted and quickly put a short sharp right to the jaw and Roche went down. He was badly dazed, and although he struggled to regain his feet, was unable to do so before the fatal ten was counted.

Immediately after the count Roche got to his feet, but staggered about the stage. When he had recovered himself he went over smilingly to congratulate the winner. He had met a better man.

The fight was for a purse of $7,500, which was put up by a syndicate, of which Richard Croker, the former Tammany leader, was a member, and a side bet of $2,500. In addition Burns had $7,000 on himself at odds of 3 to 1. The ringside betting was 7 to 2 on the American.

The blow that decided the fight was the only one of any consequence during the minute and thirty-eight seconds the men were in the ring. Burns said of the fight that it was the easiest he had ever had. He went in, he added, to make it as short as possible, as he had too much money at stake at long odds to take any chances.

Deadly Fistic Encounter.
Philadelphia, March 13.—An amateur boxing tournament following the regular performance at the Bijou theater here last night, Willie Robinson, aged nineteen years, was killed while boxing with Charles Wolf of the same age. Robinson and Wolf, who were friends, had been in the ring but 35 seconds when the latter struck Robinson a severe blow over the heart. Robinson died in a police patrol on the way to a hospital. The contestants were to have boxed three rounds for a prize. The referee, under whose management the tournaments are held, together with Wolf and the two seconds, were arrested and held to await the action of the coroner.

Took Conviction Coolly.
Kenia, Ill., March 13.—Katherine Trainor, the girl who killed Sam Roberts, her lover, on the public square here Sunday night, was convicted of murder in the circuit court yesterday and sentenced to the Joliet penitentiary. The proceedings were concluded in less than thirty-six hours after the killing. She began a twenty-five-year sentence today. The young woman took the whole procedure coolly, saying she was glad she killed Roberts.

A Fool and a Gun.
Cleveland, O., March 13.—William Krueger, twenty-one years of age, opened fire upon a crowd of men and women in a restaurant last night and instantly killed Edward Draudt, forty years old, severely wounded James Barr and then attempted to commit suicide. It is believed Krueger will die.

Enters on Seventh Sentence.
Michigan City, Ind., March 13.—Thomas Holmes, colored, fifty-eight years old, has been sentenced to a term of two to fourteen years in prison for highway robbery. Holmes is a former convict from Indianapolis, and he has served six terms in prison, one term in Joliet and one in Iowa.

DECAY IN WOOD PREVENTED

It is estimated that a fence post, which under ordinary circumstances will last for perhaps two years, will, if given preservative treatment costing about 10 cents, last eighteen years. The service of other timbers, such as railroad ties, telephone poles, and mine props, can be doubled and often trebled by inexpensive preservative treatment. To-day, when the cost of wood is a big item to every farmer, every stockman, every railroad manager—to everyone, in fact who must use timber where it is likely to decay—this is a fact which should be carefully considered.

It is easy to see that if the length of time timbers can be used is doubled, only half as much timber will be required as before and only one-half as much money will need to be spent in the purchase of timber. Moreover, many woods which were for a long time considered almost worthless can be treated and made to last as long as the scarcer and more expensive kinds.

Of the actual saving in dollars and cents through preservative treatment, a fence post such as was mentioned at the beginning might serve as one example. The post is of loblolly pine, and costs, untreated, about 8 cents, or, including the cost of setting, 14 cents. It lasts about two years. Compounding interest at 5 per cent, the annual charge of such a post is 7.53 cents; that is, it costs 7.53 cents a year to keep the post in service. Preservative treatment costing 10 cents will increase its length of life to about eighteen years. In this case the total cost of the post, set, is 24 cents, which compounded at 5 per cent, gives an annual charge of 2.04 cents. Thus the saving due to treatment is 5.49 cents a year. Assuming that there are 200 posts per mile, there is a saving each year for every mile of fence of a sum equivalent to the interest on $219.60.

In the same way preservative treatment will increase the length of life of a loblolly pine railroad tie from five years to twelve years and will reduce the annual charge from 11.53 cents to 9.48 cents, which amounts to a saving of $58.75 per mile.

Hints as to How Money
Can be Saved and Less
Material Needed

It is estimated that 150,000 acres are required each year to grow timber for the anthracite coal mines alone. The average life of an untreated mine prop is not more than three years. By proper preservative treatment it can be prolonged by many times this figure. Telephone and telegraph poles, which in ten or twelve years, or even less, decay so badly at the ground line that they have to be removed, can, by a simple treatment of their butts, be made to last twenty or twenty-five years. Sap shingles, which are almost valueless in their natural state, can easily be treated and made to outlast even painted shingles of the most decay-resistant woods. Thousands of dollars are lost every year by the so-called "bluing" of freshly sawed sapwood lumber. This can be prevented by proper treatment, and at a cost so small as to put it within the reach of the smallest operator.

In the South the cheap and abundant loblolly pine, one of the easiest of all woods to treat, can by proper preparation be made to take the place of the high grade loneleaf pine for many purposes. Black and tupelo gums and other little-used woods have a new and increasing importance because of the possibility of preserving them from decay at small cost. In the Northeastern and Lake States are tamarack, hemlock, beech, birch, and maple, and the red and black oaks, all of which by proper treatment may help to replace the fast-diminishing white oak and cedar. In the States of the Mississippi Valley the pressing fencepost problem may be greatly relieved by treating such species as cottonwood, willow, and hackberry.

Circular 139 of the Forest Service, "A Primer of Wood Preservation," tells in simple terms what decay is and how it can be retarded, describes briefly certain preservatives and processes, gives examples of the saving in dollars and cents, and tells what wood preservation can do in the future. The circular can be had free upon application to the Forester, Forest Service, Washington, D. C.

RUSHVILLE, INDIANA, MARCH 18 1908

We are to have more National holidays. Representative Burton Harrison of New York, has introduced a bill in the House proposing to make October 12th, the anniversary of the discovery of America, a national holiday. And, by the way a holiday in the month of October fills up a long gap between the Fourth of July, Thanksgiving and Christmas.

The school house at Collinwood, Ohio, by which nearly two hundred bright young lives were destroyed and scores of homes plunged into deepest sorrow, suggests the inquiry how much longer are conditions to be tolerated that make such tragedies more than possible?

All these catastrophes, such as the burning of the General Slocum, of the Iroquois theatre in Chicago, that of the theatre at Boyertown, Pa., and the recent disaster at Collinwood, can be traced back to one cause, that of criminal negligence and non-enforcement of law. People may talk of immediate causes in each case, but the real cause lies in the fact that the proper authorities, whose duty it was to see that the laws were complied with, failed to perform their duty. Because of carelessness on their part or a "standing in" with interested parties who did not want to incur the expense of meeting the conditions necessary to ensure safety, the laws were not enforced. That means, that in the four catastrophes mentioned above two thousand people lost their lives because of the carelessness, criminal neglect or worse for the proper authorities.

It is a lamentable fact that although immediately after such holocausts there is great indignation and many promises are made that the guilty ones shall be punished, yet it is but rarely any one is convicted. Either the authorities fail to act or else the men indicted manage to escape on some legal technicality. It took years to get the captain of the General Slocum punished, and as for the Iroquois theatre fire not one person was found guilty although all the evidence showed that the disaster was due to criminal neglect. Indignation is alright and so are expressions to censure for the guilty and of sympathy and help for the bereaved, but the lesson to be learned is: Enforce the law. Probably in every State the law requires that the doors of all public buildings—schools, churches, theatres, etc should open outward, but the law is seldom obeyed, in spite of the fact that doors opening inward are a constant invitation to disaster.

DOINGS IN CONGRESS

Mr. LaFollette Broke Down by Much Speaking in the Senate.

Washington, March 18.—Praise of President Roosevelt, Secretary Taft and William J. Bryan was heard in the house of representatives during general debate on the pension appropriation bill. The first speaker was Mr. Kennedy of Ohio, who lauded the president and his policies as well as Secretary Taft, who he said would bring great glory and prestige to the country as president. The commendation of Mr. Bryan came from Mr. Ollie James of Kentucky, who predicted that the Nebraskan would be elected president next November. An exhaustive speech in advocacy of the Fowler financial bill was made by Mr. Prince of Illinois. The other speakers were Messrs. Brundage of Arkansas, who criticised the inaction of the present congress, and Mr. Floyd, his colleague, who urged legislation to regulate the trusts.

A favorable report on the resolution introduced by Representative Harrison of New York, calling on the president to explain by what authority he has exercised executive, legislative and judicial functions in the Panama canal zone since the expiration of the Fifty-eighth congress, has been agreed to by the house committee on interstate and foreign commerce, and will be subjected to debate on the floor of the house.

After speaking for two and a half hours in the senate on the pending currency bill, Senator LaFollette asked permission to suspend his remarks and conclude later, as he was unable to continue longer. The legislative, executive and judicial appropriation bill was considered at length and at 5:23 o'clock the senate adjourned.

INDIANA POLITICS

BY ROBERT G. TUCKER

Indianapolis, Ind., March 18.—Acl Alexander, deputy state treasurer, who has just returned from his home at Marion, says that the Eleventh district convention, that resulted in the nomination of Dr. Charles H. Good of Warren for congress, was the most remarkable political contest in the history of the state. He said, however, that no bitter feeling is manifested over the result. Alexander, who has been active in Eleventh district politics for several years, predicts that Dr. Good will be elected, notwithstanding the fact that he was nominated on Friday the 13th.

The county commissioners have decided to start at once an investigation into the boarding of prisoners at the county jail and payment made to the sheriff for such boarding. The investigation is the result of an opinion given by the county attorney covering the subject of boarding of prisoners on the 40-cents-a-day plan and opens the way for suits—which the commissioners say they will file if the investigation shows a way to obtain proof for recovery of money held to have been paid to sheriffs illegally for years back. It has been the custom for years for the county to pay 40 cents a day to the sheriff for boarding a prisoner, no matter if the man were only in jail for a few minutes. The fact that he was entered in the jail record as having been locked up, even if only for a few minutes, has heretofore stood for one day for the prisoner—and has cost the county 40 cents for board. The opinion handed down is to the effect that the sheriff is not entitled to 40 cents a day for the board of a prisoner unless the prisoner actually eats three meals in the jail.

At a meeting of the Southeastern insane hospital commission, it was decided that the Aetna Indemnity company of Hartford shall be given ten days to determine whether or not it will complete the work started on the new institution by E. M. Campfield of Findlay, O., who has the contract. The Aetna company gave bond for Campfield, whose contract has been declared forfeited by the commission. The work was to have been completed by Nov. 1, 1908. A few of the buildings have been started, but the commission decided that Campfield was not pushing the work as rapidly as it should be done. The contract calls for the expenditure of $1,000,000, which is covered by the indemnity bond given by the Aetna company. The state has taken possession of the property left on the hospital grounds by Campfield. The Aetna company has been given the opportunity of completing the work or paying the state a financial bonus.

The middle of May is being suggested as a proper time for holding the county primaries in Marion county. It is said that the Republicans are not in a hurry to hold the primary, though some of the men who desire to be candidates are asking that the date be set without delay. Democrats and Republicans will nominate their county tickets the same day. The Republicans have the power to set the date. The law says the primary must be held before July 1. Republicans will not talk primaries until after the state convention, April 1 and 2.

William L. Taylor, the Indianapolis candidate for the Republican nomination for governor, has returned to Indianapolis to help his lieutenants complete arrangements for the primaries tomorrow night to name delegates to the state convention. Oliver Ensley and others in charge of Taylor's interests here, declare that the 141 Marion county delegates will be solid for Taylor. It is probable that Ensley will be chairman of the Indianapolis delegation.

Although the Democratic state ticket will be nominated next week, the contest for governor continues as much of a poser for old political forecasters as it was in its initial stages. It is becoming more and more apparent that here is a contest which the delegates themselves will determine on the floor of the convention. The coming convention promises to be one of the most interesting in the history of the Democratic party in this state.

CURRENT COMMENT

The Dead Card's Reviewers.

The death of the poet Stedman at the beginning of the year and a few months after the passing of Aldrich, who was generally considered his superior in verse, naturally brought to the fore the question, How much, if any, of Stedman's work will live? In his threefold capacity as "poet, critic and man of affairs," says a writer in the New York Sun, "Edmund Clarence Stedman was a good specimen of the manhood of America, of that paradoxical race which is at once the most ideal loving and the hardest working of the nations." Colonel Thomas Wentworth Higginson thinks that Stedman's "Kearny at Seven Pines" will be one of the few poems of the civil war that will last. Scarcely any of the longer poems from his pen will live in the opinion of this reviewer.

William Stanley Braithwaite, writing in the Boston Transcript, treats of Stedman, Stoddard and Aldrich as three American poets who held the younger generation to the age of Emerson. This reviewer thinks that if, as has been declared, Stoddard was a lesser Bryant and Aldrich a lesser Longfellow, Stedman was a lesser Whittier and also a greater Whittier. This last argument is sustained by the opinion that, whereas Whittier only chanced at intervals to be a perfect artist, Stedman was always a perfect artist. Of the three poets Stedman left the "more definite impression upon the popular mind in several lyrics which are almost as familiar as some of the better known of our older poets."

A leading lawyer of New York who has investigated the subject says it is appalling to learn the number of college graduates of long standing who are today filling clerical positions at $10 or $12 a week. For many years, he says, it has been possible in New York city to employ at $10 to $12 a week large numbers of lawyers of over ten years' standing who were graduates of both college and law school. Doubtless these statements will lead to inferences prejudicial to college education, but it will be very difficult to convince sensible persons that a young man with such an equipment is not in better case to win in the battle of life than without it.

One of the bills before congress is said to be so extremely simple that "almost any one can understand it." In that case it is safe to bet that it will be amended before the lawyers in congress permit it to be passed.

By sending two lions to the pope with the assurance that he desires to protect missionaries the king of Abyssinia can at least prove that he has given the missionaries two more chances than they had before.

No politician who declares that it is impossible to make $1,000,000 honestly is going to make friends among those who have got their million.

AN ELECTION PRIMER

Pertinent Points About Our Election Machinery For New Voters and Old

THE PROHIBITION PARTY.

When was the national Prohibition party organized? Sept. 1, 1869, in Chicago. In 1872 a national ticket was nominated, James Black of Pennsylvania being the candidate for president. Mr. Black received 5,608 votes.

What is the largest vote ever polled by the Prohibitionists? That of 1892, when John Bidwell of California received 264,133 votes for president.

Name the Prohibition presidential candidates since James Black. Green Clay Smith, Kentucky, 1876; Neal Dow, Maine, 1880; John P. St. John, Kansas, 1884; Clinton B. Fisk, New Jersey, 1888; John Bidwell, California, 1892; Joshua Levering, Maryland, 1896; John G. Woolley, Illinois, 1900; Silas C. Swallow, Pennsylvania, 1904.

What was Swallow's vote? 258,536. This was an increase of 50,000 over Woolley's vote.

State briefly what the Prohibition party chiefly stands for. The following is a part of the Prohibition platform of 1892: "The liquor traffic is a foe to civilization, the arch enemy of popular government and a public nuisance. It is the citadel of the forces that corrupt politics, promote poverty and crime, degrade the nation's home life, thwart the will of the people and deliver our country into the hands of rapacious class interests. All laws that under the guise of regulation legalize and protect this traffic or make the government share in its ill gotten gains are 'vicious in principle and powerless as a remedy.' We declare anew for the entire suppression of the manufacture, sale, importation, exportation and transportation of alcoholic liquors as a beverage by federal and state legislation."

In Order to Protect The Life and Property of Rushville's Citizens

The City council met in regular session last evening with Ball and Reynolds absent, Mayor Cowing presiding.

The report of the finance committee found the city treasurer's report correct, which was received and placed on file.

Fire Chief Homer Cole made a report to the council recommending the following: Chemical tanks to be placed in each school building; that the east furnace in the Jackson school building be repaired at once or discontinued; a fire box to be placed at the corner of Eighth and Jackson streets; one at Clark's mill; one at the corner of Third and Harrison streets, and one at the corner of Tenth and Main streets.

In his report Mr. Cole so recommended the purchasing of a combination chemical and hose wagon and 500 feet of good single jacket hose. He reported the fire alarm system to be in bad working order and recommended that it be overhauled immediately.

He reported finding the wells and fire cisterns that the sewers pass through to be in bad condition and advises that they be cleaned out for use this summer while the water is low.

On motion of Kelley the report was laid over until the next regular meeting. An order was issued in favor of W. L. Price of $192 in payment for the horse purchased for the fire department.

After allowing the usual claims council adjourned.

Was Unjustly Accused of Having a Hand in the Glenwood Green Goods Swindle

Guy Churchill, living in the Orange neighborhood, who disappeared several weeks ago, turned up at his old home last Sunday. He left when confronted with a number of financial problems and at that time his wife did not know where he went. Churchill left on the day the sheriff of Fayette county called at his residence to serve some papers in a civil suit, action being brought by a Rush county bank for the collection of a $1000 note, said to be long overdue.

It is said that all his difficulties have been settled and that he will remove to another part of the country, where he has been prospecting since leaving here.

At the time he left, his wife was of the opinion that he had been scared into going away by the parties accused of having a hand in the green goods swindle at Glenwood, who declared they intended to connect his name with the deal. It has since been learned that he did not have a hand in the affair, other than a previous knowledge of their intentions to inveigle some one into it, having approached him trying to interest him in the matter.

Veteran Printer is a Close Friend of James Whitcomb Riley, the Hoosier Poet

The Republican acknowledges the receipt of a unique calendar issued by the Wm. Mitchell Printing Co. of Greenfield, which is designed with a view of paying tribute to the long continued service of one of its faithful employees and printers, Mr. Almon Keefer who has worked in that office for forty-nine years. The portrait of Mr. Keefer is tipped on the calendar and surrounded by suggestive decorations pertaining to the printer's trade, and below the picture is the following interesting text:

Mr. Almon Keefer has been in the employ of the William Mitchell Printing Company continuously since the day it was established by the late Mr. William Mitchell in October, 1859, with the exception of the period he served in the Civil War as a member of the Fifth Indiana Cavalry. It was during this period that the United States authorities seized this plant and operated it as a Government printing-office for some little time. Mr. Keefer is a close friend of Mr. James Whitcomb Riley, the Hoosier Poet. He read to Mr. Riley stories of adventure and travel long before the poet entered school. In Mr. Riley's poems his name appears frequently as "Buck" Keefer. While a printer of the old school, Mr. Keefer is up-to-date in every branch of his art and the excellence of his work is equal, if not superior, to modern workmanship.

CHAPTER XVI.

SEATED on the side of his bed, his lamp burning on the bureau at his elbow, Dr. Kinross, in the small hours of the morning, read the paper he had found in the haunted room.

Both the wording of it and the penmanship gave evidence that the writer was a person of some education, though at times her phraseology was stilted, bookish and even a little melodramatic.

The child, Eunice, is not ours. For the sake of the moneyed reward which we knew would undoubtedly be offered for her recovery by her wealthy father we stole her away from her home. Her mother died at her birth, and I, being a trained nurse, was employed by the father to come into the house and take entire charge of the baby. When she was a year old I secretly married her father's secretary, whose learning and brilliant talents attracted me almost to the point of hypnotizing me, and together we hatched the scheme of stealing the child as a means of extracting money from the father. But an unforeseen event thwarted our well laid plan. On the very night of our flight with the child her father was killed in a railroad accident. Somehow the story got out that he had his child with him, and the mutilated body of a year-old girl was actually found in the wreck and identified as Eunice by some of the servants of the household. In this turn of affairs his entire large fortune went to the half sister of Eunice's father, a single woman of about thirty who lived alone in Washington.

We wrote to her and told her what we had done and offered to give up the child for a certain sum, but whether she didn't believe us or whether it served her purpose better not to have the child recovered I do not know. We have never had any answer to our repeated communications to her. It is now four months since we came away with the child, and we have accomplished nothing.

We are living here incognito on this out of the way Pennsylvania farm.

It is my wish to take Eunice to her aunt. The lady has seen the child several times in her visits of a few days each to her brother's home in New York, and of course she would remember her as his caretaker. She always seemed very fond of Eunice, who is her namesake. I do not believe she would deliberately do her the wrong of keeping her out of her inheritance. If I do not soon take Eunice to her the child will have changed past recognition. I cannot longer endure the burden of the crime I have committed. I must make amends. But my husband will not let me expose us both to the risk of punishment, and he still hopes to make profit out of the child. He says he will murder me before he will let me confess our crime. I never would have done this wrong of myself. I have been led into it through my insane passion for this diabolically clever and conscienceless man. Tonight must decide my fate. I shall either depart for Washington with the child or else I shall die either by my own hand or that of my husband. I leave this confession, which I trust will escape my husband's eye and fall into the hands of honest people.

I shall now write her every fact which may serve to restore Eunice to her rights. The sum of $1,000 which I took from my employer's desk the night I fled will be found pinned to the child's clothing, to be used in paying the expenses which may be involved in restoring her to her aunt or, in case of failure to prove her identity, to support her until she is able to take care of herself.

"Four thousand dollars!" mused Kinross, his face pale with the excitement of the story. "The yearly interest of that sum would have more than paid the girl's board in this meager household. And they have made a slave of her, not even allowing her to go to the public school!"

He felt a ghoul's glee in the thought of confronting old Morningstar with his discovery.

He read on.

The father of the child was the late S. S. Wolcott, Esq., of the New York city bar. His half sister is Miss Eunice Wolcott of ——— avenue, Washington.

Miss Wolcott can identify the child by the two tiny moles on her chin just under her left ear, for I once heard her say when she had the baby on her lap that Mr. Wolcott had two moles in exactly the same spot.

The little necklace and locket which will be found on the child were given her by Miss Wolcott and contain her photograph and the child's.

I solemnly affirm that what I have here written is true.

BEATRICE DANIELS.

A date twenty years back was affixed to the paper.

Kinross' heart thumped in his breast, and he sat transfixed as the hand which held the paper fell to his knees.

Eunice was the niece of Miss Eunice Wolcott, whom he had known all his life. They had lived neighbors in the city of Washington. Eunice a Wolcott! Incredible! The foster child of the Morningstars a Wolcott, than whom a prouder race had never developed out of that boat load of immigrants on Plymouth Rock! Eunice was an heiress if her identity could be proved, and Miss Wolcott would own her. He suddenly saw, with clearness, the plight of Miss Wolcott in this discovery of her niece, and a cold fear crept over him that there might be some difficulty in restoring to Eunice her inheritance. It would have been difficult enough if it had been attempted at the time this confession was made. But after all these years? He had been a youth of eighteen when Miss Wolcott had come into her fortune, and he remembered well how it had changed her mode of living from a style of modest dignity to a luxurious elegance. How, after all these years of lavishness, could she go back to a simple habit of life? And then the hurt to her pride of race (which in the absence of anything more substantial to be proud of she had nourished and brooded upon almost morbidly) to have to own kinship with a girl reared in such a sordid environment as that of this farm, with less knowledge of the world than any servant of her establishment. He had a tiresome memory of Miss Wolcott's motherly warnings to himself in his callow youth against "dragging in the mire" his fine old family name by his lamentable lack of that "exclusiveness" which, she assured him, had characterized his mother of blessed memory and both his paternal and maternal grandmothers. It was on the occasion of his having brought home from college for the holidays that splendid fellow, John Lowry, a diamond in the rough, and in his pride in Lowry's friendship having taken him to call on Miss Wolcott, who, with her literary tastes and extensive travel, he was sure would appreciate his brilliant college mate, instead of which he had brought on himself long philosophic homilies upon the duty incumbent upon "the old families" to preserve their exclusiveness and not to admit into their sacred circle any vulgar new element. When, with youthful enthusiasm, he had rebutted her theories as narrow, old fashioned and so forth she had pinned him down to the fundamental question, "Do you or do you not believe in blood, Peter Kinross?"

"I do! The blood that makes true men and women, not the blood that makes snobs!" With which parting shot he had left her, and the coolness between them thereafter had never been overcome.

He remembered his cynical reflection at the time of her brother's death. "She'll think the angels in heaven will feel honored at the arrival of a Wolcott!"

Yet he found himself just now, perhaps, inconsistently patting himself on the head for his perspicacity in having recognized that Eunice was of no common stock.

He himself had no doubt of the truth of the "confession" and of Eunice's identity with the stolen child. But while the moral evidence seemed clear and convincing, would it be sufficient without the legal proof which he recognized was lacking to persuade Miss Wolcott of her duty to give up a fortune after nineteen years' possession of it? Here would be a test of the "good blood" of which she was so proud.

"It would be more than common honesty; it would be heroic. But if she takes after her niece she won't lack the heroism."

The fact that the communications to Miss Wolcott of Beatrice Daniels, the trained nurse, had been ignored did not promise well for Eunice's case just now.

Kinross threw himself back on his pillow and clasped his hands under his head. No use to undress—he couldn't sleep. The thought of this girl, brought up as a servant to the Morningstars, her marriage to their son opposed because her poverty made her "not good enough for our Abe," her ignorance of life combined with her knowledge of books making her unique to the point of being pathetic—this young creature to suddenly find herself

Bronchial, throat and laryngeal affections, attended with hoarseness, persistent cough, and all manner of catarrhal affections are cured by the "Golden Medical Discovery."

In Chronic Nasal Catarrh, it is well to cleanse the nasal passages out freely with Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy fluid while taking the "Golden Medical Discovery" as a constitutional treatment. Old obstinate cases of catarrh yield to this thorough course of treatment.

Kinross threw himself back on his pillow and clasped his hands under his head. No use to undress—he couldn't sleep. The thought of this girl, brought up as a servant to the Morningstars, her marriage to their son opposed because her poverty made her "not good enough for our Abe," her ignorance of life combined with her knowledge of books making her unique to the point of being pathetic—this young creature to suddenly find herself a great heiress. The speculations which the situation gave rise to drove sleep far from his brain. Would she be good enough for "our Abe" when her story was known? He chuckled when he thought of old Morningstar's earnest endeavors to hang himself, metaphorically speaking, by opposing his son's marriage to a great fortune.

"She may imagine she's in love with that fellow Abe, never having seen any other sort of men, but of course a few months in 'the world' will cure her."

He wondered whether he would do well to tell her at once all that he knew of her or to wait until he had seen Miss Wolcott and learned whether or not there was going to be difficulty about her coming into her own. It would be cruel to raise her hopes before there was some assurance of their being realized. He would do well to put her off when they met tomorrow night in the haunted room with as little as would satisfy her for the time being. He would then communicate at once with Miss Wolcott. If she was spending this summer at her Newport house he would run on to see her immediately. If she were abroad (she frequently spent the summer in Switzerland) he would cable her to return home at once on important financial business.

"A good thing for Eunice that this matter has fallen into my hands," he thought, "one wholly disinterested and with time, inclination and, I flatter myself, skill to work the thing out for her in the best possible way, not merely for the fun of the excitement of the case, though there's that side of it, too, but for the spice that there is in seeing a beastly wrong righted."

He fell to wondering what had become of the husband of "Beatrice Daniels," whether her death had been a suicide or a murder and whether if the man could be found his presence would lead any proof to the "confession."

The oil in his lamp was nearly burned out as he reached this point in his meditations, and he rose, blew out the flickering light and in the dawn of the early morning flung off his clothes.

"The Sweetest Girl in Dixie" pleased an audience of goodly size at the Bijou Theatre Thursday night, when the play was presented for the first performance of a three-night engagement. The play, of which the scene is laid in the South is interesting. It is called an idyll of the Southland and is written by a Southern woman, Miss Freda Slemmons, a daughter of Congressman Slemmons, of Arkansas. Its leading characters are a Southern colonel and his daughter, two faithful old negroes, a carpetbagger and his sister, and a distant cousin of the Southern girl. They are involved in a plot in which there is an intermingling of pathos and humor.—Montgomery (Ala.) Advertiser.

American Car Pushing On. Tecoma, Nev., March 18.—The American car crossed the line from Utah into Nevada at 6 o'clock last night and kept on toward San Francisco.

Robbed His Prisoners. Lima, O., March 18.—Earl Hesser, who played the part of a deputy United States marshal from Cleveland, caused the arrest of a number of railway employees here, at Gallon and Crestline, has been sentenced to two years in the penitentiary by Judge Quall. After making his "arrests" and handcuffing his prisoners, Hesser would deliberately rob them.

He Then Shot Himself. Chicago, March 18.—Edward C. Heferman, a special police officer, was shot and killed last night, and J. L. Morlin, a bystander, was seriously wounded by Donald Starr, whom the officer had ejected from the elevated station at Jackson Park avenue. Starr, who was intoxicated, then shot himself, inflicting a wound which will probably prove fatal.

Submarine Boat Investigation Brings Out Questions of Veracity.

THE SHORT AND UGLY WORD

While It Is Not Directly Used, the Implication Is Twice Conveyed In Politely Bitter Terms.

Representative Hobson's Word Is Flatly Denied While Reporter Does Same For Lilley.

Washington, March 18.—The statement of Representative Richmond P. Hobson of Alabama before the special committee of the house investigating the charges made by Representative George Lilley of Connecticut that he had been approached by a representative of the Electric Boat company, who offered to use his influence with the speaker to have Mr. Hobson placed on the naval affairs committee if he "stood right for submarines," was contradicted before that committee by Lawrence Spear, the former naval officer, who Mr. Hobson said had spoken to him. Mr. Spear said he had not made any promises to secure the influence of Speaker Cannon or anyone else, and that he never had tried to influence them; in fact, he said he did not know the speaker.

Mr. Spear claimed that his company had never endeavored to suppress competition; had never received any legislative or departmental favors, and had never received an order from the navy department except as the result of successful competition.

Two other witnesses were A. A. Ely and Frank D. Lord, two of the newspaper men whom Mr. Lilley charged he had been warned against as in the pay of the Electric Boat company. They both denied that they were ever in the pay of the company, although they said they had done some special work for Mr. McNeill, one of the attorneys for the company, in the way of getting out some "feature" stories on submarines, for which they had been paid. Both witnesses testified that they had lost their positions as the result of Mr. Lilley's charges. Mr. Lord characterized the reputation by Mr. Lilley of an interview he claimed to have had with him, as "unqualifiedly, absolutely and deliberately untrue."

STUCK TO THE GREEN

Flag of Erin Was Still Waving When Port Battle Ended.

Galveston, Tex., March 18.—When Captain Moore of the British steamship Howthhead, of Belfast, Ireland, here for a cargo, dressed ship yesterday in honor of St. Patrick he put the green emblem above the stars and stripes. This violation of the United States law that requires Old Glory always to be at the top when displayed in a United States port, was promptly called to the commander's attention by a government inspector, but he bluffedly refused to comply with the law. Not until he received a formal demand from the United States collector of customs of this port, accompanied by an order for the revenue cutter to stand ready and threat to call the gunboat into service unless the order of the flags was reversed, did the Irish skipper yield, and then only to haul down the American flag and leave the green one up.

A Source of Protection. Port Au Prince, March 19.—The British cruiser Indefatigable and the German cruiser Knickerbocker have arrived here under orders from their governments to give full protection to any foreign residents in Port Au Prince, in case their lives or interests are threatened. An American warship is expected to arrive here at any moment. At present the city is quiet, but there is an underlying current of anxiety.

Attempted Train Wrecking. Winchester, Ind., March 18.—An attempt was made to wreck the Knickerbocker, the fast train on the Big Four railway, near the Woodbury glass factory, east of this city. A large stone, measuring fourteen inches in diameter, and a can containing nitroglycerine were found on the track and removed a few minutes before the arrival of the train. A thorough investigation is being made.

STATESMAN DEAD

Senator Whyte of Maryland Expires at Baltimore After Brief Illness.

STRICKEN IN WASHINGTON

Last Thursday the Senator Was Taken Suddenly Ill and Hastily Returned to His Home.

Erysipelas Developed and His Condition Was Soon Seen to Be Hopeless.

Baltimore, March 18.—United States Senator William P. Whyte died at his home in this city last night.

Senator Whyte was taken ill while in Washington last Thursday and returned as soon as possible. Erysipelas developed and his condition became worse, although his physicians gave out encouraging statements until after noon yesterday. About 4 o'clock the senator suffered a sinking spell, but recovered wonderfully and was conscious until the final convulsion that ended in his death at 7:05 p. m.

Senator Whyte had been in public life since 1847. He was born in this city Aug. 9, 1824, and was the son of Joseph and grandson of Dr. John Campbell Whyte. His maternal grandfather was the famous lawyer and orator, William Pinckney. He graduated at law at Harvard in 1845. His political career began with his election to the house of delegates of the Maryland legislature of 1847-8, since which time he has held nearly every office in the gift of the people of his state. He was state comptroller in 1853-55, and ran for congress in 1857, but was defeated. He was a delegate to the national convention of 1868, and the same year was appointed United States senator to fill the unexpired term of the late Reverdy Johnson upon the latter's appointment as minister to Great Britain. He was governor of Maryland 1871-74, and in the following year was elected United States senator. He became mayor of Baltimore in 1881 and attorney general of Maryland in 1887.

Another Texas Lynching.

Conroe, Tex., March 19.—Messages from Magnolia, a small town near here, say that last night an attempt to criminally assault a young white woman was made by a negro, whose name has not been learned. The sheriff left for the scene and found that one negro had been killed and another mortally wounded by unknown persons. One of the men dealt with was the girl's assailant.

Big Brewery Strike.

St. Louis, March 18.—Twenty-four breweries in St. Louis and East St. Louis are almost completely shut down by the walk-out of nearly 3,500 union brewers, malsters, bottlers, firemen and freight handlers, allied with the brewing interests. The employers declared, however, that there is no possibility of a beer famine and that the strike would soon be ended.

TO SUCCEED EVANS

Admiral Sperry Will Bring the Big Fleet Home.

Washington, March 18.—Rear Admiral Charles Sperry will be commander-in-chief of the Atlantic battleship fleet when it leaves San Francisco in July to encircle the globe. This important detail has been decided on by President Roosevelt and his cabinet. Rear Admiral Evans on his personal request will be relieved of the command at the conclusion of the big naval review at San Francisco May 8. The admiral considers this the completion of the work he was assigned to do—take the Atlantic fleet to the Pacific coast. Admiral Evans retires in August.

To Rear Admiral Thomas comes the honor of commanding the fleet on its visit to Puget sound and until the homeward journey begins. He has been second in command during the voyage and retires in October. These retirements make possible two promotions to the grade of rear admiral, and these are to be filled by the advancement of Captain Seaton Schroder and Captain Richard Wainwright, who will command respectively the third and fourth squadrons of the fleet, and Rear Admiral Emery the second.

Admiral Sperry, who is to bring the "Big Sixteen" back to the Atlantic coast by encircling the globe, has had long and distinguished service in the navy. He is a native of New York but is accredited to Connecticut in his appointment to the naval academy. He became a rear admiral in May, 1906. During the war with Spain Admiral Sperry was equipment officer in the New York navy yard. Afterward he was given command of the Yorktown in Philippine waters and directed the movements of the landing party on the eastern shore of Luzon, which is now regarded as one of the most thrilling adventures of the campaign against Aguinaldo. The landing party of the Yorktown was captured by Aguinaldo's men. Some of them were wounded and all were taken prisoners. Then began the famous chase of the insurgents and their prisoners throughout the length of the island, resulting in the release of the men at Aparri, on the northern extremity of Luzon.

As one of the officers under Admiral Walker, Sperry helped to make successful the picturesque voyage of the "White Squadron," which visited Europe and South America in 1891-93. From the command of the New Orleans on the China station, Admiral Sperry became president of the war college. His next detail was to the last Hague peace conference, where he went as one of the American delegates. Returning from The Hague, he was given sea duty and assigned to command the fourth division of the Atlantic fleet, in which capacity he has made the trip around the Horn with Admiral Evans.

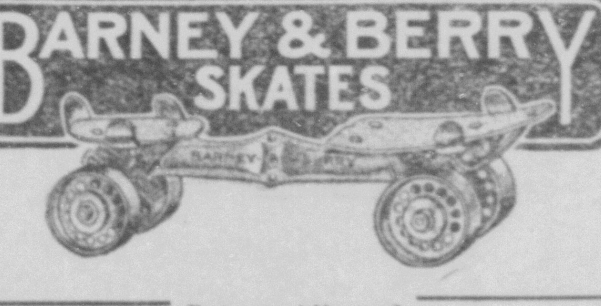

Riotous Students Fined.

Ann Arbor, Mich., March 18.—All of the University of Michigan students arrested Monday night in a riot at the Star theater are at liberty, but fifteen of them had to furnish $1,000 bail each after being led into Justice Doty's court and back to their cells like hardened criminals, handcuffed and under a heavy police guard. Three students pleaded guilty on a charge of loitering and were fined $4.65 each. The fifteen who gave bail will have their examination Friday morning on a charge of rioting. There are no indications of any recurrence of the disturbance.

They Are Not Talkative.

Honolulu, March 18.—From the Gilbert Islands comes the report of the wreck of an American-built schooner yacht of about 120 tons. The yacht has no name painted on it and no clearance papers. The only persons seen in connection with the yacht are two young men who gave their names as J. Taylor and G. Jackson, both of England, one twenty-four years of age, the other nineteen. They say little about themselves. They claim to have bought the yacht in Valparaiso, but to have got no register with her, and to be on their way to Tahiti.

It is a fight affecting every man, woman and child, and upon which the interest of the whole world is focused.

STOP THE STRENUOUS LIFE

Weakens the Tissues and Lessens Organic Vitality

The stress and strain of the strenuous life in both city and country tends towards stomach troubles. Five people suffer today where one did ten years ago with sick headache, dizziness, flatulence, distress after eating, specks before the eyes, bloating, nervousness, sleeplessness and the many other symptoms of indigestion.

All who are suffering with stomach and that means at least two out of three in Rushville and other towns, should use Mi-o-na stomach tablets. Nothing else can be so thoroughly relied upon to relieve all troubles from indigestion as Mi-o-na.

So reliable is Mi-o-na in its curative action that Johnson's Drug store, with every 50 cent box they sell, give a guarantee to refund the money unless the remedy cures.

Raymond Chicken Lice Powder

In using a chicken lice powder, one wants the freshest material that can be had. A package that has been on the drugstore shelf since last season is not apt to be of any use for killing chicken lice.

One That is Fresh

In using Raymond Chicken Lice Powder you get one that is pure and fresh. We give you a full two pound package for 25c, over twice as much as you get of others, or a pound for 15c.

DON'T GET YOUR EYE

So near a quarter that you can't see a dollar behind it. A few more cents added to the cost of an article in the beginning may make you a dollar in the end.

You can't buy something for nothing. A good shoe may cost you a little more than a poor one, but it will be money well spent for it will be cheaper in the end.

Our policy is to sell a GOOD SHOE or SELL NONE.
